Partner 1: Hey, I really don't want to keep going unless we use a condom.

Partner 2: But you're on birth control.

Partner 1: I always double up on protection to prevent pregnancy and STIs. I like you a lot, but we're not exclusive, and we haven't been tested for STIs.

Partner 2: You can trust me. Just this once can't hurt.

Partner 1: I'm not willing to take that risk. And I feel like you're pressuring me right now.

Partner 2: I don't know. This whole conversation is kind of killing the mood for me.

Partner 1: Sex without a condom is a mood killer for me. I'd be too nervous about getting pregnant or an STI.

Partner 2: You're being way too uptight about this.

Partner 1: Well, it's clear we're not on the same page about safer sex. And I'm not going to change my mind. So, let me know if you change yours.

Partner 2: Really? All this over a condom?

Partner 1: I only have sex with people who care about my health and boundaries. It was fun hanging out with you. But, refusing to use a condom is a dealbreaker for me.
